Intelligence news from around the Caribbean...

The Bahamas police commissioners policing plan for 2014 stated that their number one priority for this year would be the 'Prevention and Detection of crime'. Their main objective, in regards to crime prevention was to increase the number of visible police officers on the streets, amongst others, particularly in areas renowned for high crime rates. As a result of this plan, certain divisions are already putting additional procedures in place, such as in the North eastern Division. They have begun to reinforce rules of the road which lead to 207 drivers being cited for traffic violations and a number of arrests were made in regards to disorderly behaviour. Likewise the South eastern Division cited 201 drivers for traffic violations and the Mobile Division Officers made 20 arrests within the New providence area within a 24 hour period on 31st January which included 13 arrests on persons for outstanding warrants issued by the courts.

Although positive steps are being taken by the local police force with the intention of reducing crime and minimizing the ability for criminals to commit crime, February has still seen an alarming number of crimes published by the 'Royal Bahamas Police' which highlight the need for increased situational awareness for any citizen living or planning to travel to the region.

According to the police reports, the highest level of reported crime throughout February was armed robbery which had in excess of 30 separate incidents, each one involving possession of a firearm by the assailants. A high degree of these incidents involved the robbery of the victim's car and almost all of the incidents involved being robbed of cash.

We would advise you to limit the amount of cash that you carry and opt for using credit or debit cards instead. Should you need to use an ATM whilst out and about, we strongly advice that you take someone with you and avoid using ATM's alone, as these can be an easy target for attempted robbery.

Over 17 reports were published this month which involved a person or persons being shot, and in some cases the shots were fatal. A number of these incidents were undertaken in the

At the end of January 2014, the U.S Embassy in Nassau advised all U.S citizens who reside within or plan to travel to the Bahamas, to be extra vigilant in regards to protecting themselves against crime. This comes as a result of an overall increase in crime rates throughout the region so far this year and throughout the later months of 2013.

Armed robbery and violent crime remain the major threat. This includes within tourist areas such as New Providence and Grand Bahamas Islands.

The Bahamas police commissioners form of a drive by shooting which involved the assailants driving up alongside their victim and firing their weapon from inside the car.

There was a major blow to the drug traffickers in the Bahamas this month with police reports showing a number of intelligence based operations taking place which has led to the seizure of large quantities of dangerous drugs. Officers of the Drug Enforcement Unit along with the Bahamas customs and the U.S customs conducted a search of a 20ft container at the Freeport Container Port and discovered a total of 80 taped packages hidden amongst bags of coffee. The packages are believed to contain Cocaine with an estimated street value of $2 million dollars. It was also reported later in the month that the Drug Enforcement Unit and the Royal Bahamas Defence force, conducted an intelligence based operation within the Sea Breeze area where they were able to observe a large quantity of dangerous drugs being off loaded from a vessel and into a truck. The seized amount was later reported to be Marijuana with an estimated street value of $800,000.

St Kitts & Nevis

St. Kitts and Nevis are known for their unspoilt, natural beauty. With well-preserved ecosystems, white sandy beaches and beautiful resorts. These two tranquil islands are becoming an increasingly popular tourist destination.

Like most of the Caribbean islands, crime exists and in particular violent crime, which is currently on the rise with statistics showing the number of murders in the region rose during 2013, proving gun related crime is becoming increasingly problematic.

The majority of these crimes tend to occur within local communities however there have been incidents in recent years involving British nationals including a double murder and a violent attack.

It is important to remain vigilant at all times. You are advised not to travel alone or in isolated areas which also include the beaches. Instead opt for travelling in groups and keep to the areas you are familiar with, particularly during the hours of darkness.

St Kitts saw its first murder of 2014, when the son of an opposition politician was shot dead as he was about to enter his home. Unfortunately, this was not the only murder to occur in the region so far this year, others include:

- January 9th – 30 year old male shot and killed as a result of a drive by shooting.
- February 21st – male found dead in Nevis. Suffered trauma to his head which appeared to the result of a gunshot wound.
- February 27th – 73 year old woman stabbed to death outside her apartment building. Her husband has been arrested in connection to this case.

In addition to these murders there were in excess of 7 separate shooting incidents so far this year with each case resulting in an injury. As a result of these shootings, some victims still remain in a critical condition.

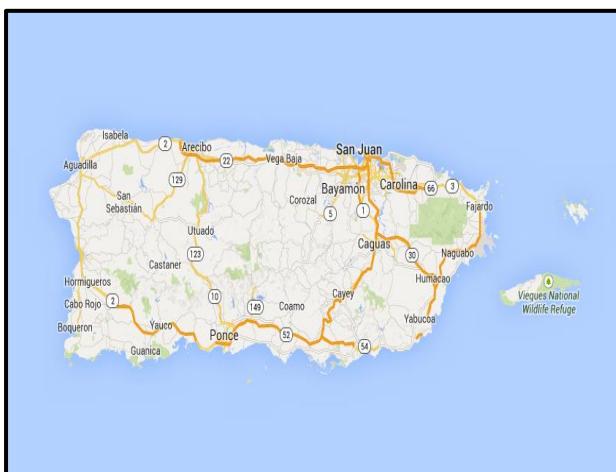

During January this year the Nevis police called on members of the Nevis community to assist the police in their efforts to reduce crime. This came after an 8% increase in overall reported crime on the tiny Eastern Caribbean Island. The increase was reflected in all categories, the most prevalent being armed robbery, wounding and murder. Positive steps are clearly being taken to help combat the increasing crime rate. In February it was reported that CCTV coverage had expanded across St. Kitts and Nevis which, although it does not stop crime, it is a useful tool to help solve crime issues and create possible leads.

As with a high number of Caribbean Islands, the illegal drug trafficking combined with the increase in number of firearms appearing on the streets is a lethal mix and one which appears to be apparent in this region. On February 6th, in excess of $12,000 worth of drug and $465 in cash were seized by Niagara Regional Police following information on a possible drug operation at a St. Catharines Home. Four persons were arrested in connection.

In other news on St. Kitts and Nevis, the government has identified the importance of yachting in the region and views it as a priority area for development. It was agreed that by developing the yachting sector, there would be tremendous economic benefits for the region. Charter boats and privately owned yachts are among the clientele that visit this destination therefore the arrival of 'Christophe Harbour', an additional marina at Porte Zante and a new marina in New Guinea will be a welcome addition.

Puerto Rico

collateral damage. It was the first high profile example of criminals operating in this way and began the widespread fear amongst the general public, which has since continued.

Other drug related headlines in the region are:

- January 14th – US customs and Border protection officers seized 78 pounds (35.5 Kilos) of cocaine inside a container at the San Juan seaport. Estimated Street value US$850,000.
- January 17th – US customs and Border Protection Officers seized 12 pounds (5.35 Kilos) of cocaine on a vessel arriving at the San Juan seaport. Estimated street value US$119,000.
- March 5th – US customs and Border Protection Officers along with the US coastguard, intercepted a vessel attempting to smuggle in 38 bales of cocaine totaling 2,432 pounds (1,103 kilos) which has an estimated street value of $27.5 Million.

Puerto Rico has been in recession for the last 8 years and has seen public debt climb to $70 billion, and unemployment rate rise by 14% with the cost of living soaring. During this time there has been a large surge in the number of reported crimes across the region. In 2011, murder rates hit an all-time high with 1,130 recorded murders in that year alone.

Puerto Rico not only suffers from an unstable economic situation which limits available resources, but the crackdown on crime is also hampered by a troubled police force which has been accused of police brutality and corruption. This year however, the U.S Justice department and the government have finalised a deal to reform the Islands police force. The U.S has pledged $10 million to Puerto Rico and under the deal, Puerto Rico's Police force must rebuild public confidence by the use of additional training for officers who are assigned to the streets, and implement new disciplinary procedures among other reforms.

On 28th January, it was reported that more than a tonne of cocaine had been seized by RAF Wave Knight and US Coastguards.

Allmode Summary and Advice

This 2nd edition of the Caribbean report is based on a few of the Caribbean Islands. Each edition will highlight news on different regions of the Caribbean to help create better situational awareness and highlight the threat and risk of visiting the region.

It is important to remember the Caribbean, in general, relies heavily on tourism and news of criminal activity or threat to life can be devastating to their economy, so it comes as no surprise that not all criminal activity is reported and those that are reported are not always released to the media. Statistics and information available do not always reflect the true threat.

Before you decide to travel to any particular region, it is always advisable to check for local travel advisories or warnings before you go. The best place to gain this type of advice would be your foreign office or state department. You will be able to obtain a broad overview of your destination which will include crime and safety facts which will help build your situational awareness of the region and you will also be able to find out information on any current travel warnings in place.

Throughout this edition of the Caribbean report, the illegal drug trade has featured heavily. There are severe penalties for all drug offences throughout the Caribbean so it is vital that you protect yourself from this type of crime. Ensure that you pack all luggage yourself and never let any other person carry your luggage for you through customs. Keep your belongings with you at all time and never leave bags unattended.

As a tourist you may also find yourself in the position where you are offered drugs in pubs/bars. The police in some areas can be vigilant and you could face a substantial fine, deportation or even imprisonment should you be found to be in possession of an illegal substance.

In areas of known drug activity you are at heightened risk of having your drink 'spiked' when out socialising in bars/clubs. It is important that you protect yourself from this type of act by ensuring that you purchase your own drinks and do not accept any drinks from unknown persons. In addition to this, ensure that you keep your drinks with you at all times and avoid leaving them unattended.

Remember, should you wish to receive further information on how to remain safe whilst travelling, more in depth knowledge on a particular area you wish to visit or require more advanced levels of security, then Allmode can provide training courses and information to help improve your safety and situational awareness in a number of ways. Contact admin@allmode.org for a full outline of our security services or alternatively you can contact intelligence@allmode.org for full information on all types of reporting that can be issued.

Finally, Allmode would advise that you discuss the appropriate insurance needed with your Broker before transiting or visiting the region. Please also note that if you wish to undertake any excursions or take part in any sport activities during your stay to a particular area or resort, ensure that the operator has all the necessary adequate insurance cover and that health and safety precautions are evident.

Health Advisory

- Anguilla

Dengue Fever in the Caribbean...

Back in December 2013, the United Kingdom issued a health advisory for Britons travelling to the Caribbean. This came after an increase in the number of confirmed cases of Dengue fever in England, which were diagnosed in travellers that have been to certain destinations which included parts of the Caribbean, in particular Barbados and Jamaica.

The total number of cases in England in 2012 was 343 compared to 223 in 2011.

Any person who is in or planning to travel to the Caribbean should be aware of the health risks and endeavour to practice strict mosquito bite avoidance at all-time which will help to minimise the risk of becoming unwell.

Cholera in Dominican Republic and Haiti...

The Cholera epidemic in the Dominican Republic and Haiti began in October 2010 with thousands of reported Cholera cases and related deaths. New cases continue to be reported to this day throughout both countries; however during the first few weeks of 2014 the number of cases has decreased compared to the same time period in 2013. Any person who wishes to travel to the areas should be aware however that the number of cases could increase during seasonal heavy rainfall which is likely to occur in the months May to July and September to October.

Other places which have seen cases of Cholera in recent years are Cuba and Mexico. In Cuba there were suspected cases in 2012 which authorities continue to monitor, however no new cases have been reported since August 2013. In Mexico, Cholera cases were reported in Mexico City and the states of Hidalgo, Mexico, San Luis Potosi and Veracruz during 2013 as a result of tropical cyclones which caused heavy rain, floods and landslides. It currently stands that no new cases have been reported since November 2013.

Cholera is an acute intestinal infection caused by the Bacterium Vibrio cholera which is commonly spread through contaminated drinking water and eating food.

Yachting News

Good news for Yachts wishing to visit the Maldives...

Previously, law in the Maldives stated that tourist vessels can stay in the Maldives for a maximum of 90 days. However, the Republic of the Maldives has now announced that Super yachts wishing to visit the region, can now officially stay for up to 180 days. In addition, if the boat is registered by the International Maritime Organization (IMO), then the stay can be extended up to a total of 270 days.

New Cruising Tax in Greece...

The Greek Government has now imposed a new tax on all leisure and commercial tourist craft.

The aim of the imposed tax is to 'strengthen public revenue' and follow the same guidelines made by their neighbouring countries. It is not however, to act as a disincentive to tourists. Any leisure boat over 7m LOA afloat in Greek waters will be liable for the tax, but not those that are stored ashore. The tax will apply to all boats, including non-EU boats. And was due to be effective from 1st January 2014, however it will not be collected until a new on-line tax collection system – TAXIS – is in operation which they hope to have in place by April 2014. No penalties will arise before this new deadline. Once you have a receipt of payment for this tax, it must be carried with the Ship's paper, and may be asked for at any time.

For more detailed information about this tax see <http://cruising.org.uk/news/greektax>

Swedish Sailors rescued in the Atlantic...

Niklas Calberg, 35 and Karin Wiger, 24 were little more than a week into their three month Voyage from Florida back to Sweden, when events turned against them.

Their 33-foot sailing yacht 'Bull' had been taking on water for about 4 days with the source of the leak unknown. The two bilge pumps were keeping up until they encountered unforeseen 35-40 knot winds, gusting to 45. With very little sleep over a 3 day period and one of the bilge pumps failing, they were forced to activate the boat's EPIRB, which alerted watch standers in the USA state of Virginia and rescue coordination efforts began immediately.

Meanwhile, the 498-foot Panamanian-flagged ship Crown Sapphire, located approximately 10 nautical miles away, volunteered to alter course and help in the rescue efforts.

By the time Crown Sapphire reached the Swedish duo, they had taken to the boat's lifeboat and due to the rough sea's they were required to jump from their liferaft onto a cargo net hanging from the Crown Sapphire to climb to safety.

According to the coastguard, SY Bull apparently sank about 8am Sunday 9th March and was lost to the Sea's. The team had hoped to circumnavigate the world in Bull.

The Bucket Regattas maintain the original, non-commercial flavour throughout the event and the primary reason for its success is the emphasis is more upon good wholesome fun rather than the winning!

This year's St. Barths Bucket will take place on 27th – 30th March 2014
